Arabic

Iraqi Dialect Orientation Course (Operation Desert Shield)

Produced by the Defense Language Institute

This course is designed as a supplement to existing Arabic materials; it is anticipated that students of this course will include both non-Modern Standard Arabic speakers and Modern Standard Arabic graduates who are unfamiliar with the Iraqi dialect.

The course consists of 11 lessons: lesson 1 focuses on pronunciation and introduces Iraqi dialect sounds; lessons 2 through 11 are designed around selected topic areas that highlight common situations one might expect to encounter.

Topics covered include: greeting, giving information, courtesy phrases and expressions, numbers, time expressions, and the weather.

The learning activities for most lessons are: transliteration, vocabulary, and lessons.

Levantine Arabic Introduction to Pronunciation

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

The Levantine Arabic course consists only of an introduction to the pronunciation of the language. It refers to the dialect of educated Palestinians around Beirut, Lebanon, but is intelligible in most urban areas of Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, and Israel. Since most of the sounds of Levantine Arabic also occur in other Arabic dialects, the course can also be used in the study of those dialects.

Modern Written Arabic

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

Though there is considerable diversity of dialects in spoken Arabic, the written language is fairly standard with the differences falling into historical periods rather than geographical areas. The emphasis in the Modern Written Arabic course is on reading modern printed Arabic. However, before attempting this, it is necessary to learn the Arabic writing system and have reasonably accurate pronunciation. The course provides spoken exercises in Arabic and the printed transcriptions that are essential to achieving mastery of the material.

Saudi Arabic Basic Course – Urban Hijazi Dialect

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

Of the three major dialects in Saudi Arabic – Hijazi, Najdi, and Shargi – Hijazi is used throughout the country for government and commercial purposes, and has become the most widely understood dialect in the Arabian Peninsula. Even so, there is no “standard” Hijazi dialect, but the basis for the Saudi Arabic Basic Course is “urban” Hijazi, to distinguish it from the Bedouin dialects also native to the region. The aim of the course is “working” proficiency in the language. The course enables you to speak and understand Saudi Arabic speech at a normal rate in a variety of social and business contexts.

Saudi Arabic Headstart

Produced by the Defense Language Institute

This course is designed to help you communicate with Saudis in several basic situations and to enable you to exchange common courtesies that are essential in Arab countries. The course is divided into 8 modules, plus a student guide and a cumulative glossary. Topics discussed are: greetings, introductions, directions, business meetings, inviting people, problems on the road, and shopping.

Each module is divided into two lessons. The learning activities for most modules are: objectives, conversations, notes on conversations, additional vocabulary, speaking exercises, self-evaluation tests, and glossary. Cultural notes include information on the land, the people and their history, the religion, the lifestyle and social customs, things to do and things not to do, your living situation, notes for female dependents, Yemen, and recommended reading.

Saudi Arabic Headstart

Syrian Arabic Through Video New!

Produced as a collaborative effort between the Georgetown University Arabic Department and the Center for the Advancement of Language Learning

This unique course enables students to learn Syrian Arabic through authentic video. Filmed mostly in Damascus, the course uses only native speakers of the dialect. Task-based activities on a variety of topics help build listening comprehension skills at the intermediate level (1+ to 2+ on the U.S. government proficiency scale).

The course uses authentic materials and task-based activities to build proficiency, emphasizes listening comprehension, requires only a VCR and an audiocassette player, and is designed for self-study as well as classroom use.

The course is arranged into 10 modules, each with a different topic. The topics include: social encounters and arranging appointments, telephone situations, getting around, bargaining and negotiating, social interaction, and politics and economics.

The complete course comes with a student workbook, teacher's guide and answers, resource book, transcripts, supplemental materials. The individual components can be purchased separately.

Cambodian

Cambodian Basic Course

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

This course examines two different Cambodian dialects: Standard Cambodian and the Phnom Penh dialect. Standard Cambodian is the approved speech for public education and mass communications. Of all the Cambodian dialects, it corresponds most closely to the writing system. The Phnom Penh dialect is spoken in the country's capital city. It differs sharply from the Standard Cambodian in pronunciation but is similar in other aspects. Being familiar with both styles of speech will enable students to speak and understand the language better.

This course contains 90 units, arranged in groups of five under a common theme. The first four units of each group are based on dialogues and the fifth unit is based on a narration. The text for units 1-20 is entirely in standard Cambodian. Starting with unit 21, the dialogues are in the Phnom Penh dialect, and the narration is in Standard Cambodian. Each of the 90 units includes: dialogues, drills and vocabulary sections.

Chinese

Cantonese Basic Course

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

Cantonese is the principal language of the Kwangtung province in Southeast China, parts of the Kwangsi province and of Hong Kong and Macao. In addition, Cantonese is spoken by ethnic Chinese in Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, Singapore and Malaysia. Almost all Americans of Chinese descent in the United States are of Cantonese origin.

This course deals with daily life in Hong Kong and includes samples of speech, explanations of basic language structure, and a variety of practical exercises. Each of the 30 lessons contains: basic conversations, grammar and cultural notes, pattern drills, conversations for listening, and "Say It In Cantonese," that provides English-to-Cantonese practice. Also included with the course are vocabulary checklists and a cumulative glossary.

Standard Chinese: A Modular Approach

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute and the Defense Language Institute

The focus of this course is on understanding in practical situations Mandarin Chinese, the official dialect of the People's Republic of China. The material is organized into modules that deal with particular situations or language topics. You select the modules that you want to study in the order that you prefer.

It is recommended that at least the first three modules (Orientation, Biographic Information, and Money) and the resource module be studied to achieve basic proficiency in the language.

In many cases, two of the Standard Chinese modules share the same text and workbooks. Students should order one module with texts and the other module without texts. Modules that share texts are: modules 1 and 2, modules 3 and 4, and modules 5 and 6.

Chinyanja

Chinyanja Basic Course

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

The Chinyanja Basic Course presents all the essential grammar of the spoken language of Malawi. It is divided into two main parts. The first consists of Units 1-40 and the second of Units 41-63. The first part emphasizes those words and sentences that students are most likely to need during their first few weeks in Malawi. The principal points of grammar are introduced, but they are not treated systematically, and there are few drills. In the second part the materials from Units 1-40 are reintroduced. This time, however, the units are longer, and more attention is given to mastery of the grammatical devices of the language. Each lesson includes dialogues and notes.

Czech

Czech FAST

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

The Czech FAST course is designed to help students acquire the communications skills necessary to deal with the most common social and everyday situations encountered.

Designed as an 8-week introductory course, the FAST course does not attempt to present a systematic and comprehensive introduction to Czech grammar. Grammar is instead presented in a very elementary form to help gain some understanding of "what is happening."

The course is divided into 12 lessons, plus an introductory lesson. The lessons cover the following topics: introductions, asking directions, public transportation, using the telephone, at a restaurant, shopping, at a hotel, culture, car trouble, at work, car accident, and dealing with servants.

The learning activities for most units are: cultural notes, dialogues, exercises, vocabulary, and language notes.

Hungarian

Hungarian Basic Course

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

The Hungarian Basic Course is written to provide students with the basic structure of the spoken language and a vocabulary to make limited practical use of both the spoken and written language while in Hungary. The course is intended to be colloquial, and emphasis is placed on idiomatic use and proper pronunciation of the spoken language. However, it also provides grammatical notes and instructions in the use of the written language. Each unit includes a set of basic sentences, notes to the basic sentences, notes on pronunciation, notes on grammar, transformation drills, variation drills, vocabulary drills, translation drills, response drills, conversation practice, and additional situations that are brief descriptions that promote free conversation.

The Hungarian Graded Reader is designed to develop reading ability in Hungarian by using audio material with the text with minimum recourse to translation. The 56 reading selections are arranged to follow students' progression from the beginning through the intermediate stages of reading proficiency. This text will supplement a beginning course in Hungarian or as part of an intermediate course.

Kituba

Kituba Basic Course

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

Kituba, also known as Kikongo ya Leta and Munukutuba, is a vehicular or trade language spoken along the lower reaches of the Congo and its tributaries. The Kituba Basic Course consists of a "primer" in the language and five subject-oriented groups of lessons. The primer is intended to introduce the major grammatical structures of the language, to develop in the student an adequate pronunciation, and to present a certain amount of useful vocabulary for a variety of situations. The subject-oriented lessons build on the vocabulary and grammar presented in the primer. Each unit in the primer consists of a short dialogue, variation drills, a vocabulary supplement, grammar notes, and grammar drills. In subsequent units, the dialogue is supplemented with a short narrative. Notes in these units are rare and there are no drills.

Sinhalese

Colloquial Sinhalese

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

The Colloquial Sinhalese course features the essential grammar of Sinhalese or Sinhala, the official language of Sri Lanka. The course introduces the colloquial variety of spoken Sinhalese, which is used by all social and educational levels in conversation. It represents primarily a variety spoken by educated speakers of the south-western coastal regions, but dialect differences are sufficiently small for it to be understood anywhere, and students who learn it can quickly adjust to the speech of the other areas. The text is in two parts. The first includes 24 lessons, with conversations, grammars, exercises and review exercises. Part two has twelve additional lessons, a summary of inflected forms, and cumulative English-Sinhalese and Sinhalese-English glossaries. Early lessons make use of romanized transcription, but the Sinhala script is introduced, and after lesson 12 material is in that script.

Spanish Programmatic

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

Spanish Programmatic in Latin American dialect is intended to lead you to a minimum professionally useful level of proficiency. The course offers five learning modes as follows: introduction, dialogue, grammatical practice, variations, and application. The first 20 units of volume 1 emphasize word and phrase structure. The remaining units expand the vocabulary and further develop verb morphology. At the completion of the course you will have completed work comparable to somewhat more than the first year of college-level Spanish.

Turkish

Turkish Basic Course

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

The Turkish Basic Course is an introduction to spoken Turkish in that it includes the major patterns of simple sentences and vocabulary of about 475 high frequency items. It provides a basis for communicating with Asian Turks as far east as Sinkiang Province in China and as far west as the Tatar regions on the Volga. The course enables students to communicate in all but the most isolated Kurdish villages. Each unit begins with a dialogue between two or more speakers. Many of the units also include variation and lexical drills, questions for discussion, notes, grammar and vocabulary drills, and narratives.

Twi

Twi Basic Course

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

Approximately 6 million West Africans, principally those living in southern Ghana, speak Twi. Since it is a tone language and each syllable in a word has its own tone or pitch, the audiocassettes are an indispensable aid in learning the language. The Twi Basic Course indicates tone by using diacritical marks. Unit one of this course consists of 48 drills of pairs of words that are distinguished by tone or consonant and vowel differences that often cause difficulty for speakers of English. Other units include basic dialogues, notes, and drills such as lexical, substitution, question and answer drills, and pattern.

Yoruba

Yoruba Basic Course

Produced by the Foreign Service Institute

The major language of Western Africa, Yoruba is spoken principally in Nigeria. The Yoruba Basic Course is divided into a number of parts. First there are three series of tone drills that concentrate respectively on the tone patterns of short vowels in short utterances, the tone patterns of long or double vowels in short utterances, and the tone patterns of longer utterances. Following the tone drills is a series of 49 lesson units. Of these the first 20 introduce and drill those aspects of the grammar that involve changes in tone and vowel length. Notes and exercises accompany each unit. A series of sentences in the style of a phrase book follows the lesson units. Many of the units include dialogues, notes, exercises, and supplemental material.

Glossary

This catalog features audio and video self-instructional language training programs produced by the Foreign Service Institute of the U.S. Department of State, the Defense Language Institute of the U.S. Department of Defense, the Center for the Advancement of Language Learning, and the Central Intelligence Agency. Courses are available from the NTIS' National Audiovisual Center with or without texts. The audiocassette programs are recorded in 2-Track, mono, meaning that material is recorded on both sides of the cassette. Some language courses have words in their titles such as basic, programmatic, and introductory. The following glossary should assist you in selecting the course that will meet your needs:

Active Introduction: A mini-course, covering the first 100-300 hours of training, that includes oral exercises. All lessons include short verbal exchanges.

Basic: The courses that present all essential grammar of a spoken language. These courses typically include samples of speech, explanations of basic language structure, and a variety of practical exercises.

FAST: (Familiarization and Short-Term Training) The course is designed to familiarize you with the country, the everyday situations visitors encounter and provides the needed language skills to handle each situation.

Headstart: The course teaches you how to handle everyday situations. The emphasis is on speaking and understanding the language.

Introduction to Pronunciation: Consists only of an introduction to the pronunciation of a language.

Introductory: A mini-course, covering the first 100-300 hours of training. It presents a selection of the most frequently occurring grammatical patterns in a language.

Modular: The course is organized into modules that focus on particular situations or language topics. This allows a certain amount of choice as to what is taught and in what order.

Phonology: A programmed introduction to the most frequently occurring grammatical patterns in the language. The emphasis here is on pronunciation.

Programmed: Presents all the essential grammar of the language and provides aids to self-evaluation. The student sets the pace of the learning process. New material is presented in "frames," one idea at a time.

Programmatic: Similar to a programmed course, but somewhat less material featured in the programmed format.

U.S. Government Proficiency Scale: Assesses linguistic skills in listening, speaking, and reading based on a proficiency scale ranging from Level 0 (essentially no ability in a language) to Level 5 (an educated native speaker of the language). Each level has a plus (+) through 4+, indicating proficiency that substantially exceeds one skill level but does not fully meet the next level.

Expand Your Global Perspective With These Related Titles From NTIS and NAC

Along with our language training materials, these related titles will help you expand your global perspective. The Destination Series from the Peace Corps' World Wise School Program helps students and others enhance their cultural understanding and geography awareness. The 1995 World Factbook, the Country Business Guides, and the Country Commercial Guides contain vital information for anyone involved in international business. Use these titles alone or to supplement our language training materials.

Peace Corps' World Wise Schools Program—Bringing the World Home

For thirty years, Peace Corps has been best known for its Volunteers' service to people overseas. Peace Corps has another less-well-known goal, and that is to promote Americans' understanding of other peoples and cultures around the world. The World Wise Schools program is one of the ways Peace Corps is meeting this goal.

Peace Corps started World Wise Schools in 1989, a time when polls indicated a distressing lack of geography knowledge by students in the United States. In today's world, that puts our Nation at a serious economic and social disadvantage. The Peace Corps' World Wise Schools program provides an innovative way to enhance cultural understanding and geography awareness while reinforcing good citizenship. In a changing world, one that is increasingly interdependent, it is very important for our students to learn all they can about the peoples and countries outside our borders.

The World Wise Schools program allows U.S. students and their teachers in grades 3 through 12 to learn about another culture by corresponding with a Peace Corps Volunteer living and working in one of the 100-plus countries Peace Corps serves around the world. World Wise Schools also produces award-winning videotapes and study guides featuring Peace Corps countries.

The Peace Corps Destination videotapes are available from the National Technical Information Service's National Audiovisual Center. The cost of each VHS tape is $25 plus handling fee and $35 plus handling fee for the VHS tape with a study guide.

Other new programs will be added on a regular basis.

Country Commercial Guides

Your best single-volume resource for country-specific business information.

Country Commercial Guides contain the market information you need to successfully conduct business in foreign markets. Available for over 100 countries, each CCG presents a comprehensive look at that country's commercial environment through economic, political and market analyses. In addition, best prospect export sectors, trade regulations, business travel information, and an upcoming trade events schedule will help you focus on where your best markets are and how to approach them effectively.

The guides were established by recommendation of the Trade Promotion Coordinating Committee — a multi-agency task force — and prepared by the U.S. Department of Commerce's International Trade Administration. CCGs are prepared annually by overseas posts.

Each CCG includes the following sections:

- Leading Trade Prospects for U.S. Business
- Economic Environment
- Political Environment
- Marketing U.S. Products and Services
- Trade Regulations and Standards
- Investment Climate
- Financing
- Business Travel

APPENDICES:

- Economic/Trade & Investment Data
- Best Prospect Sectors Assessments and Data
- TPCC Agencies' Services for Exporters
- U.S. and Country Contacts
- Available Market Research
- Trade Event Schedule

CCG are also available in sets covering seven regions and can be ordered exclusively from NTIS in paper copy, diskette and downloadable formats. The following prices do not include a handling fee. Domestic prices are for U.S., Canada, and Mexico. Foreign prices are for all others. See page 30 for information on how to connect to NTIS' FedWorld.

FedWorld® – Your On-Line Resource for Government Information

The National Technical Information Service' FedWorld® is the electronic access point to locate, order, and acquire scientific, technical, engineering and business-related information from U.S. government sources. Access is free of charge. Current FedWorld features include walk-you-through-prompts, a simple on-line help system and electronic delivery of many products.

A special feature on FedWorld is the NTIS Preview Database where you can have immediate access to bibliographic information on thousands of new information products entered into the NTIS collection within the last 30 days.

Another new feature of FedWorld is the Training Mall which provides a central location for information on federal jobs, training schedules, materials, and services.

You can also shop on line through the FedWorld Marketplace. Depending on the item, you may order in printed format, on computer disk, or by downloading it to your computer.

To Connect to FedWorld

By modem – Set modem parity to none, data bits to 8, and stop bit to 1. Set terminal emulation to ANSI. Set duplex to full. Then, set your communication software to dial FedWorld at (703) 321-FEDW (3339).

By Internet – Telnet to fedworld.gov. For Internet file transfer protocol (FTP) service, connect to ftp.fedworld.gov. For World Wide Web service, point your browser to <http://www.fedworld.gov>.

FedWorld Marketplace – Once connected, select option M from Main Menu.

NTIS Preview Database – Once connected, select option B (Locate and Reference Government Information) from the main menu, then choose option B to access the NTIS Preview Database.

For assistance, call the FedWorld Help Desk at (703) 487-4223.

About NTIS' National Audiovisual Center

In 1994, the National Audiovisual Center merged with the National Technical Information Service to provide a central outlet for federally produced audio, video, multimedia, computer and print products.

The National Audiovisual Center offers more than 9,000 federally produced audiovisual and multimedia titles in a wide range of subjects. Besides the materials in this catalog, our collection includes training materials for fire service, law enforcement and occupational safety and health. Our holdings also include titles for professional and personal enrichment in the areas of business, history, health, medicine, natural resources, and science.

The National Technical Information Service is the central resource for U.S. government scientific, technical, engineering, and business-related information. The collection also contains similar information from non-U.S. government and from domestic and international nongovernment sources.

Each year, NTIS adds more than 100,000 new titles to its collection of approximately 2.7 million products. The collection includes technical reports, periodicals, databases, computer software, diskettes, CD-ROMs, audiovisuals, and on-line services.
